

Hedrick Brothers Construction Celebrates 40th Anniversary

Back on January 11, 1979, Dale Hedrick founded a new West Palm Beach construction firm with two employees. Forty years later, Hedrick Brothers Construction is one of the state's top privately owned and operated firms with a long list of residential and commercial clients.

"Our team is passionate about building quality projects and excelling in those that are the most demanding and complex," said Hedrick, who leads a team of more than 130 professionals.

A fourth-generation general contractor, Hedrick is following in the footsteps of his father, grandfather and great uncle, who began building homes in Palm Beach County for soldiers returning from World War II. Raised in the family business, Hedrick graduated from the University of Florida's M.E. Rinker Sr. School of Building Construction.

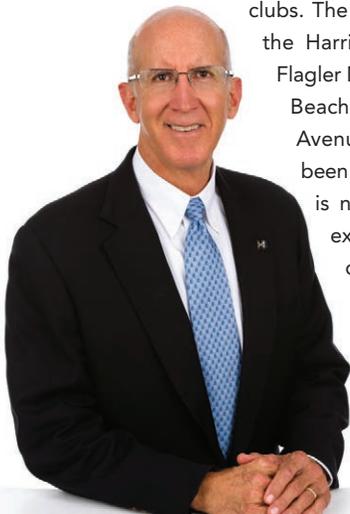

"We have built luxury residences and estates in Florida and Georgia for 18 billionaires, but it is our team's ability to serve diverse markets that truly sets us apart," said Hedrick. "People come to us because we believe, and they believe, in trust. They know when a project is done, it will be done right."

In the past 40 years, Hedrick Brothers Construction has built innovative office buildings, high-performance industrial complexes, schools, municipal buildings, automobile dealerships and country clubs. The firm's iconic landmark projects include the Harriet Himmel Theater at CityPlace, The Flagler Museum's Kenan Pavilion, the 1916 Palm Beach County Courthouse and the Worth Avenue Clock Tower. Braman Motorcars has been a client since the mid-1980s, and the firm is now working on a 360,000-square-foot expansion project for the West Palm Beach dealership.

In the community, the firm supports charitable organizations and professional associations including the ACE

Mentor Program, Habitat for Humanity, the American Heart Association, the Palm Beach County Food Bank, and the South Florida Science Center & Aquarium.

To save its clients time and money, Hedrick Brothers Construction has invested in the latest industry technology, such as virtual design and construction. "Our team thrives on a culture of integrity, quality construction and collaboration," said Hedrick. "We look at building from an owner's perspective, and ensure a true partnership approach is in place with the client, architect, engineers and design consultants before the shovel hits the ground." PBCB
